

“To my Pop”

A Father will be there to catch you when you fall.

A Dad will tell you what you want to hear, even when you don't want to hear it all.

A Father will strive to provide you with worldly advice, while all the while he will remain kind, thoughtful and nice.

A Dad will upset you, just to see what you will do and he would do it again never think twice.

My dad was “Pop” to me because no one can define what a “Pop” is supposed to be.

Rough and tumble, strong and stern,

Hard to get along with and even harder to learn.

Yes; my dad, my father, was “Pop” to me, because a “Pop” is something a dad or a father cannot be.

- BG Milford H. Beagle, Jr.
